

Introduction to Trauma Informed Education

Healing-Centered Approaches to Adverse Childhood Experiences (ACEs) in Schools

WHO IS THIS PRESENTATION FOR?

The Introduction to Trauma Informed Education is a school-wide approach to preventing and responding to ACEs (Adverse Childhood Experiences). It is for everyone who is involved with children in an education setting. The information provided is used in schools, mental health settings, family-serving agencies, courts, and anywhere there is an opportunity to support schools and education settings that serve children and families.

Training is available at no cost to you.

WHAT WILL YOU LEARN?

- . The impact of adverse childhood experiences on students' education and on the school and classroom culture.
- . How to identify the signs and symptoms of ACEs and trauma.
- . Best practices for schools and classrooms regarding trauma-informed education across tiers making interventions realistic across settings.
- . The impact of secondary trauma on school employees.
